1214.16

Saturday, July 3 -

For the last three or four hours we have been able to see land and every eye has been focused on the outline and we have thoroughly enjoyed watching the lines grow more and more distinct. It is positively exhilirating - every one is astir and preparations for going ashore are most in evidence. Every one flying about gaily, finishing the letters that they should have written before.